

Announcing the 2022 Barbara Giamanco Memorial Scholarship Recipients

The Sales Education Foundation is proud to partner with the many friends and family of Barbara Giamanco in announcing the 2022 Barbara Giamanco Memorial Scholarship recipients. Fifty-eight applications were received from female students studying Professional Sales at over thirty universities. Recipients were chosen by an independent Selection Committee and judged on their written essays as well as their match to scholarship requirements. According to the Committee Chair, Lori Richardson, "This year's selection team had a tough time because of all of the great submissions. All who applied are winners in our mind. We want these women to know we support their efforts and that there is a community of support to help them reach their goals."

2022 Scholarship recipients are:

Clarisse Chatfield
Florida State
University

Czerise Villiers
University of Central
Florida

Emma Milbert
University of Central
Florida

Matea Floryance
Baylor University

Natalie Williams
The University of Kansas

Nicole Boylan
The University of Alabama

Virginia Cheng
The University of Texas at Dallas

Wellsley Cohen
Elon University

Since 2020, thirty-one young women have received a scholarship in memory of Barbara Giamanco. They represent the future of the Sales Profession.

According to Ms. Marty Holmes, SEF Executive Director, "We are proud to support the Barbara Giamanco Memorial Scholarship and look forward to this year's recipient's future successes."

About SEF

The Sales Education Foundation (SEF) is a non-profit foundation dedicated to promoting the profession of sales through college and university programs. The SEF works with a variety of industry professionals and academic trailblazers to establish and support effective university and college Sales programs throughout the globe. For more information on SEF, visit <https://salesfoundation.org>.